Afternoon Tania,

I have addressed the statements below.

- We currently have 5 tables outside our café on the lower level. These are maintained throughout the day and brought in each night. We are planning to build huts under the arches. This would give customers a relaxed area to enjoy their food and the beachfront. The huts would have a table and benches inside with a heater. If we chose to have music. It would be a small background speaker in each hut. This area currently forms part of our premises. We are also exploring the possibility of having further benches in front of this area. Subject to council approval. We are also opening a Harry's Beach Shop and Retro Pick n Mix Shop in our closed arches. We hope this will create a family friendly area along the beachfront.
- The speakers would be fitted in the huts on the lower level.
- We won't be serving late-night refreshments, as we will be stopping service at 10pm.

I also want to refer to the loud music on the beach. The Sunset beach bar had several loudspeakers with DJs on most days. We have no intention of having any loud music. We offer a family friendly environment for customers to enjoy themselves.

Regards

Jason

Another report from today's paper. The restaurant seems to attract breast gropers and illegal immigrants.

Not what we want in the town and alcohol will exacerbate this.

An illegal immigrant who tried to grope two teenage girls on Bournemouth beach has been jailed.

[REDACTED], attempted to touch the breasts of the two girls, aged 15 and 17, in separate incidents just a few minutes apart.

[REDACTED], an Indian man who moved to the UK in 2012 and overstayed his VISA, first ran up to the younger girl and her sister outside Harry Ramsden's fish and chip shop on the prom.

The pair had been at the beach with their family and went to get food for everyone.
